The delegates of LEPRP Jeanne Antide students gathered for a 3rd round table on Fake News in the media, the last act of a project extended this year for cases of covid force majeure case. Ten students scheduled for the German meeting at the beginning of February will meet once again by videoconference with the 5 European partners.

Today's meeting reminded students of the interest of the project in a Europe energized by social networks by highlighting the Erasmus educational network.

Strengths involved: A teacher in history and geography recalled the major dates in the construction of Europe and its borders. The computer teacher underlined by his presence the importance of new means of communication by presenting the project site, the communication teacher always has an eye on the quality of the photos, posters and other documents produced during the meetings. A school life educator remains attentive to publications on the networks.

The student delegates produced posters with the next participants to inform their classmates of all this dynamic essential to the life of the establishment. We can bet that the February meeting will also be productive for the proper education of students in the media and information.
